

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a process for the surface-immobilization of antimicrobial polymers, where the surface-immobilization of the antimicrobial polymers takes place by metal deposition, and also to a metal coating having antimicrobial properties.

5